Examinations

There will be one official examination at the end of the term.

Term Paper

The student's attention is drawn to the list of fifty-nine suggested reading topics which are being distributed separately. Many of the asterisked titles are available at Classics Bookstore. Each student is expected to read at least four books on the theme that he selects (in consultation with the instructor) and to produce a short critical essay based on his readings. The essay is to be typewritten and must be submitted in duplicate no later than Monday November 28, 1977.

Discussion Sections

The students who have registered in Section X are expected to participate in weekly discussion meetings. These meetings are under the direction of the Teaching Assistant for the course. They will provide an opportunity for discussion of readings, lectures and audio-visual presentations.
